Familiarity indicates the amount of time you have used a piece of equipment. In Japan, there is a long tradition of believing that tools used over the years are inhabited by gods or spirits. When you equip items with a high level of dating, you will get more Amrita when you pray in the sanctuary. As the equipment reaches certain levels of familiarity, its abilities will grow stronger. Once the maximum familiarity is achieved, the equipment, which has a special effect, marked by the inherit icon, will transmit this special effect if it is used as a material in Soul Matching. Soul Matching Soul Matching improves the level of your equipment. The level of basic equipment is rewritten by the level of equipment used as a material, and the familiarity of the basic equipment will be prepared. If familiarity with the equipment chosen as the material is at its maximum, and it has a special effect, marked to inherit that special effect can be inherited. You can choose tangible equipment with a lower level of that basic equipment, but the level will not be raised. The element chosen as the material will be consumed and disappeared in the process of matching the soul. Inheriting each equipment can have a maximum of one special effect that can be inherited, as noted by the inheritance icon. To transfer the effect marked by the inheritance icon, first lift this equipment to maximum familiarity, and then use it as material in Soul Matching. If the basic equipment has no effect with its own inheritance icon, it will inherit the effect. If the basic equipment has an effect with its own inheritance icon, it will be re-recorded by the inherited effect. There are also some combinations of special effects that cannot be inherited. You can not inherit the effect and save the previous one when the shower is matching, selecting the finished shape (before the soul matches) and clicking R2.
